

The Jeremiah Connection

Excerpt 4

From WHILE TRUE CHRISTIANITY SLEEPS IN, INTERFAITH NONSENSE CREEPS IN

Can two walk together, except they be agreed?

- Amos 3:3

For I have set my face against this city for evil, and not for good, saith the LORD: it shall be given into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall burn it with fire.

- Jeremiah 21:10

I won't even call it heresy. It's nonsense. Heresy is something that strays from the truth. The Interfaith movement never had anything to do with the truth. In fact, the very term "interfaith" suggests the belief that there is no absolute truth.

Dear people – if you are concerned about your salvation and need direction, here is one question you can answer: Do you believe that Allah is the same God as Jehovah? If you answered no, that doesn't prove salvation, but you're on the right track. If you answered yes, you need to repent and get right with God.

There is no other way to say it. The exclusivity of the Gospel of Christ leaves no other possibility but Jesus as the one Way to the Father God. In John 14:6, Jesus says, "I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me." Furthermore, we must believe that Jesus Christ came in the flesh and is the Risen Lord today. "And every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God: and this is that spirit of antichrist, whereof ye have heard that it should come; and even now already is it in the world.” (1 John 4:3)

Since “there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved” (Acts 4:12), the question that needs to be posed to anyone claiming Christianity but joining forces with the Interfaith crowd is simple: What are you smoking?

The use of the word “interfaith” is fairly new in our world, but it is a tool of the devil from long ago. The people of Judah had multiple gods while claiming to belong to God Himself, and the people in our midst today proudly belong to this Interfaith group or that, announcing their separation from all that is true.

This “all roads lead to the same god” theory jeopardizes the nation. There is only One God whose judgment we are going to reap if we put other gods before Him, in place of Him, or alongside Him. But the theory of “tolerance” has turned into an acceptance of others’ false religious beliefs. I can say I “tolerate” that you worship trees, but do I have to accept that form of worship? No way. Is that form of worship right for you? That form of worship is not right for anyone. Whatever strays from the Word of God is rubbish. False religion has already made us a nation of law-breaking idiots. Why do we want to jump on everyone else’s bandwagon? The one faith that proves itself is not a religion – it is a joint-heir relationship with Christ and life according to the principles of the Kingdom of God.

To say we have Christ, but embrace the religious beliefs of one who does not, is not only a lie from our own mouths, but it puts the person with false beliefs in jeopardy also. If we have the truth in Christ, shouldn’t we share it instead of saying “I’m OK, you’re OK?” If you’re not OK, and I say you are, then I am not OK.

In keeping our heart with all diligence, we will not be caught up in the Interfaith movement. But we need to be aware of its spiritually injurious nature. Its adherents are self-righteous, patting themselves on the back, truly believing they are onto something good, something that invites all people to be loved and accepted. A true servant of God recognizes it for what it is: a diabolical plan of the enemy to close the one road to the Father by way of Jesus Christ. The lie is that there are many roads to choose from, but everyone reaches heaven. It is similar to the phony “gospel of inclusion,” with all ending up in the same place, reaching the same god. (Note lower-case “g.”)

We mimic the failed ways of Judah in this also by casting aside all reverence to God in order to get along with everyone. Man comes first. Whatever man believes is as good as gospel. What were the priests preaching? Whatever made the people feel comfortable and acceptable. What does the Interfaith movement preach? Its message keeps all people comfortable and acceptable. But without the stamp of Christ, we are not acceptable to God.

The Church of today, feeble in spirit, lazy in discipline, loving the ways of the world, is ripe for this kind of insanity. Even members of the true Church can't agree on the simple things. Doctrinal differences cause feuds between denominations. If a kingdom divided against itself isn't going to stand, how is the Church going to stand when the fire of temptation comes and splits up the brethren? Temptation to turn from the truth in Christ is everywhere. If turning from the truth in Christ will gain us new friends, well, there we are, no questions asked.

In the 1990s, the devil prepared this country for the new level of “tolerance” that sprang up after 9/11. Knowing there would be an uproar because all our terrorists were Muslim, he created several groups in the United States (and abroad) comprised of people of the Interfaith mindset in the mid-to-late 1990s, declaring a big “I’m OK, you’re OK” to the world. What this did, in effect, is shut the mouths of people who dared to say Islam is evil (which it is) because according to Interfaith, we are supposed to respect all people of all religions, and accept their religion. No one is our enemy.

I single out Islam for example, because it is the devil's #1 counterfeit religion to Christianity, his #1 spiritual tool against everything a holy God stands for as we head to the final war of mankind, and he brought it to the spotlight so we (Christians) need to deal with it. And because we are told we cannot "stereotype" or "racially profile" any follower of Islam as a potential criminal, the blind in America have gone goofy in a completely different direction and decided to embrace them as wonderful proponents of peace that we must tolerate and invite into our fold.

This warped ideology is the devil's sense of humor. It contributed to Yasser Arafat, former Palestinian leader, earning the Nobel Peace Prize in 1994. He was a violent dictator, militant Muslim who vocally condemned the existence of Israel, and perpetrator of terrorism who instructed his militia to use children as human shields. Moving in this same spirit, people everywhere blindly believe good of evil and accept falsehood as truth.

And it is this same warped way of thinking that has the Interfaith movement going along embracing every possible religion as peaceful, loving, and acceptable to a holy God. The founders of such groups as the Church of Interfaith Christians or Interfaith Center of New York, to name a few, probably had a whole world envisioned where everyone says "Peace to you" and smiles all day long because there is no more war. This world exists somewhere between the cotton candy clouds and marshmallow mountains where puppy dogs and kitties are free to frolic along crystal blue streams, and the sun never goes down.

For anyone not wanting their heads in the cotton candy clouds, understand that true and lasting peace will not come on this earth until Jesus Christ returns and sets up His true Kingdom. This time is nearer than most think, but our attempts at bringing utopia to earth without Him are foolish and idealistic. Better to cling to Him with our hearts and be on the right path now and let Him put a real love for fellow man into us than to try to create a love out of human effort and “tolerance.”
